

NCEA Eagle has been created by Scientists, Otago University graduates and teachers. It is the leading interactive revision tool directly tailored for the New Zealand NCEA external exams.

In 2011, when the new NCEA exams were first implemented, a concerning pattern in student performance emerged. Students were performing well in the internal exams, but not the externals. With an average of one teacher to 25 students, teachers did not always have the time to address each student's specific weaknesses. Furthermore, focus groups and research revealed that schools can give students everything they need to get high grades but students still will not obtain the grades they are capable of.

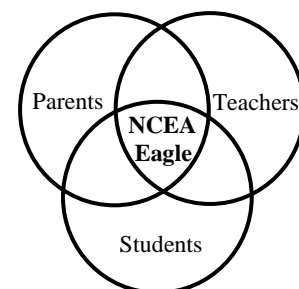

The NCEA Eagle system allows students to become directly responsible for the grade they receive in each subject. It is currently available for Level 1 Mathematics and Science, Level 2 Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics and Biology, and Level 3 Calculus, Statistics, Chemistry, Physics, and Biology.

NCEA Eagle is a secure interactive revision tool that improves the way students create and remember revision notes. This cloud-based innovation tailors learning to the individual student and provides all the visual-aids and resources 24/7 to make learning external NCEA subjects quickly.

Firstly, students identify what they need to know for Achieved, Merit and Excellence grades using easy to read skill lists for each topic within each achievement standard. They then identify how to avoid common mistakes that many students make, key words needed and perfect the terminology required for Merit and Excellence answers.

The system allows the user to physically see their knowledge grow as they "lock the information into their memory". A variety of memory tricks and thinking skills are provided alongside visual big picture views for each section of all achievement standards in a subject.

There needs to be a collaborative approach between teachers, parents, and the student. This software tracks each student's progress towards getting higher grades. Students can see what they have done and what level they are at allowing for healthy three-way communication.

NCEA Eagle will improve your school's NCEA results.
